"12 End-Story daughters seen. I am not sure where to start with this bull! They were medium to tall cows, displaying phenomenal strength and depth for such young cows; yet surprising angularity. They had width all the way from front to back - showing ideal slope and width to the rump. In addition, leg set was ideal and foot angle was exceptionally good. However, it was their udders that really surprised and impressed me. I expected to see a slightly rounded fore udder with a little more depth overall. But I could not have been more wrong! Their udders were shallow, with a good ligament, fore udder was very strong, whilst rear udder was high with plenty of width. Most of these daughters were in very commercial units and were vastly superior to their contemporaries. Anyone looking to use an O-Man son without compromising on dairyness and especially udders can use this bull with confidence."
